WIT AND WISDOM

THE WIT THAT WON HEARTS

Let us do these activities before we read.

- I. Read the short story given below.

Once Shiva and Parvati held a competition between their sons Ganesh and Kartikeya. They were given the challenge to move around the world three times. The one who wins, would receive the fruit of wisdom. Kartikeya, with his peacock mount, quickly set off. Ganesh, on his mouse, realized he couldn't compete with Kartikeya's speed. Instead, he moved around his parents, Shiva and Parvati three times. He took for them as his entire world. Pleased with his devotion and wisdom, Shiva and Parvati gave him the divine fruit.

Now, discuss the reason why Ganesh was given the fruit of wisdom.

Let us read

renowned: well known

illustrious: respected and famous

patron: supporter

eminent: famous

acclaimed: Praised

The Vijayanagara Empire was renowned for its glory, wealth, and cultural achievements. Among its many illustrious rulers, King Krishnadeva Raya (ruled 1509–29 CE) stood out as a wise and powerful monarch. His reign is often referred to as the Golden Era of the Vijayanagara Empire, a time when art, literature, and architecture flourished. A great patron of learning, Krishnadeva Raya was not only an eminent warrior but also a gifted poet. His works, such as the epic Amuktamalyada and the Sanskrit drama Jambavati Parinayam, are acclaimed even today.

Krishnadeva Raya's court was home to eight celebrated poets, collectively known as the Ashtadiggajas. These poets, including Allasani Peddana and Tenali Ramakrishna, enriched the literary tradition with their masterpieces. Tenali Ramakrishna, in particular, was known for his quick wit and humour, earning him a special place in the king's court as both a poet and a witty advisor. His clever solutions to seemingly insurmountable problems made him a beloved figure in the empire's history.

Even the wisest rulers face moments of disharmony, and at one such time, the king had a quarrel with his queen, Thirumalambal, over a seemingly trivial matter. For weeks, he did not utter a single word to her, and in his frustration, stopped visiting her altogether. His absence cast a shadow over the palace, and the once cheerful corridors seemed quiet and forlorn.

Thirumalambal, was upset and tried her best to resolve the issue but failed. With no other alternative, she decided to seek the help of Tenali Rama, the court's brilliant and witty poet. Rama listened patiently as the queen recounted the incident in detail.

"The king wrote a poem," she began, her voice trembling. "It was filled with vague expressions - sun, moon, stars, beautiful sky - but it made no sense. When he tried reciting it to his ministers, they all

insurmountable:
undefeatable

trivial:
unimportant

forlorn: lonely

vague: unclear

avoided him, making excuses. It was late evening when he came to me, seeking an audience. He began reciting it to me, but I was so exhausted after a tiring day that I yawned— not once, but several times. The king thought I was disrespecting his poem and stormed off. Since then, he has not spoken to me. If I had known this would happen I would have chosen another day. Help me, please, Rama. Only you can help the king understand.”

strategy: plan

profusely: in large amounts

bustling: busy

ornate: decorative

stern: very serious

gnawed: (here) bothered

Rama nodded thoughtfully. “If you like, I will try my best to resolve this matter, Your Highness. But this needs a well-planned approach, and I may need time to find the right strategy.” The queen, who had placed her last hope in Rama, agreed and thanked him profusely.

The next morning, the royal court was bustling with activity. Ministers, scholars, and courtiers filled the courtroom, Rays of sunlight streamed through the open windows, illuminating the floor adorned with exquisite rugs. Despite the lively chatter, a tension hung in the air. The king sat on his ornate throne, his expression stern, his sharp eyes scanning the room. It was evident that the unresolved quarrel still gnawed at him.

The court discussion was centred on improving paddy cultivation in the empire. One by one, the ministers rose to present their ideas. Some suggested expanding irrigation networks, while others advocated for better manure. Amid these suggestions, Tenali Rama stood quietly at the edge of the court, observing everyone with an amused smile.

Finally, the king called upon Rama. The chatter in the court died down as all eyes turned to him. Rama approached the throne, carrying a plateful of paddy seeds. Bowing low, he began, “Your Majesty, I bring you a revolutionary type of paddy seeds. If these are sown, the yield will be three times greater than the current results.”

A murmur swept through the room. One of the courtiers, known for his sarcasm, whispered just loud enough to be heard, “I wonder if these are magic seeds! Next, he’ll claim they grow without water.” Another muttered, “Perhaps he found them on the moon!” Snickers rippled through the court.

The king frowned, unimpressed. “That sounds absurd,” he muttered. “Such cultivation would need special soil, manure, and pest and insect repellents. If, by chance, something were to go wrong, our farmers would suffer.”

Rama smiled, unfazed. “That may be true, Your Majesty, but the real issue lies not with the seeds themselves but with the person who sows them.”

yield: (here)
harvest

sarcasm:
mockery

snickers:
suppressed
laughter

absurd: illogical

unfazed: not worried

hush: Silence

furrowed:
wrinkled

sceptical:
doubtful

keenly:
intensely

gesture: a movement of a
hand or the head,
to express an idea
or a meaning

A hush fell over the court as Rama's words hung in the air. The king's eyebrows furrowed. "What is wrong with the person who sows the seeds? Speak clearly, Rama!" he roared.

Rama glanced around the court, his sharp gaze meeting the sceptical eyes of the courtiers. "If one were to sow seeds without proper care, no one would reap a good harvest," he said, pausing for effect. "And what if the person had a habit of yawning while sowing? Wouldn't the seeds scatter unevenly?"

The court erupted into laughter, the earlier sarcasm replaced by genuine amusement. Even the king, caught off guard, sighed and instinctively yawned. Rama watched him keenly, then continued, "Your Majesty, is there anyone in this world who does not yawn? It is as natural as breathing."

The king's expression shifted as realisation dawned. His mind raced back to the quarrel with the queen. He remembered scolding her harshly for yawning while he recited his poem. He realised how unfair he had been. "If I had known that yawning was not a sign of disrespect, I wouldn't have taken her gesture so personally," he thought, regret filling his heart.

That evening, the king approached the queen with a softened expression. “Thirumalambal,” he began, his voice gentle, “I have been foolish. I see now that I overreacted. I let my pride blind me. I’m so sorry.”

The queen, who had longed for this moment, smiled and replied, “If you like, we can leave this quarrel behind us. I would very much like to listen to your poem.”

Rama, who had orchestrated this settlement, felt victorious. The king and the queen later presented him with valuable gifts for his service. The royal couple’s bond was restored, and the palace brimmed once again with joy and laughter.

arranged

brimmed:
overflowed

IV Read the sentences from the text and their explanation given in the table below.

|------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1. If you like, I will try my best to resolve this matter.             | Simple Present + Present Modal              | The condition in the 'if' clause may or may not be fulfilled. The present tense refers only to a possible future action.                                                              |
| 2. If, by chance something were to go wrong, our farmers would suffer. | Simple Past + Past Modal                    | The condition in the 'if' clause expresses a hypothetical or imaginary situation.                                                                                                     |
| 3. If I had known this would happen, I would have chosen another day.  | Past Perfect + would have + Past Participle | The condition in the 'if' clause describes what the speaker would have done (differently) if the past situation had been different and it is impossible to rectify it in the present. |

In sentence 1 'if you like' is the subordinate clause (if clause) and 'I will try my best to resolve this matter' is the main clause.

Note: Read the sentence and separate then into two parts. "If you like, "I will try my best to resolve this matter." If you like - one part (first part) "I will try my best to resolve this matter". (another part/2nd part). Let first part - 'x' (If part) 2nd part - 'y' (Main part)

In 'x' part (If part) we have a present simple verb 'like' and in 'Y' part (main part) will - Modal auxiliary (If part) - X - Part happens first. (Main Part) - Y - Part happens later. (If Part)- X - Part is the cause/condition. (Main Part)-Y- Part is the result/effect. In both the Parts - time reference is Futurity. Here the present tense in the 'If' Part-refers to more possible actions in the future.

Now, match the subordinate clauses (if causes) in Column 1 with the appropriate main clauses in Column 2 to make complete sentences.

| Column 1                             | Column 2                                      |
|--------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------|
| (i) If I had a magic wand,           | A. We will go to the theatre.                 |
| (ii) If it rains tomorrow,           | B. I would sneak into the secret room.        |
| (iii) If you had listened carefully, | C. I would give myself wings.                 |
| (iv) If you finish your homework,    | D. The boys would have woken up on time.      |
| (v) If I were invisible,             | E. We will stay indoors and play board games. |
| (vi) If the alarm had rung,          | F. You would have solved the puzzle.          |

Are you coming home?

 Now, work in pairs and mark the intonation in the questions given below.

1. The name of the witty character (Who...?)
2. The reason for her/his wit being important in the story (Why...?)

Let us write

You have already come across how to write a paragraph. Now come forward to learn how to write essays. Remember essay-writing is of mainly three types: such as (i) Controlled/Guided writing (ii) Free writing (iii) Creative/imaginative writing.

Look at the format of an essay writing:

- (i) A Relevant Title.
- (ii) Introduction:
- (iii) Organisation of ideas
- (iv) Body/content
- (v) Language appropriateness/Grammaticality
- (vi) Style
- (vii) Conclusion/ Ending.

Let us start with the controlled/Guided writing. In a Guided writing the title of the essay will be given. followed by some hints/outlines. Those outlines/hints will be developed into small paragraphs. While developing the points given above should be well taken care of. Remember the conclusion part must have a graceful ending.

Title: A Lesson in Responsibility.

Outlines: Village you live in - festivals you observe in your locality- how you observe it - your responsibility you perform- your realisation (Develop the outlines into an essay)

Read the sample essay given below.

In our village in Odisha, Kartika Purnima is observed with pomp and ceremony. The river glows with hundreds of clay lamps (dipa), believed to guide our ancestors and bring peace to our homes.

Last year, my mother gave me responsibility of carrying a tray of lit dipas to the ghat. It was the first time I was given such a task; so I felt proud. On the way, I met some friends and got distracted. Laughing and not paying attention to it, I tripped and dropped the tray. The dipas broke into pieces. I was embarrassed and afraid to face my family. But just then; my grandmother who was walking behind me, reached out to help. She didnot scold me. She simply said, “ A dipa must burn steadily. If we are careless, we break more than just clay.”

Her words touched me. I realised I had taken the task too lightly, thinking it was easy. That evening, I helped relight the remaining dipas with great care.

Since that day, I've learned that responsibility isn't measured by how big a task is, but how sincerely we do it. Whether its schoolwork or helping at home, every small work matters.

1. Now write the following essays developing the outlines given below.

(a) Road Safety: (Title)

Outlines: What is an accident ? What are the traffic rules in our country ? - What should we do before crossing the road ?- Why is it dangerous to fly kites or play in the streets ? - How can motorists make the road safe ?

(b) My Mother : (Title)

Outlines: Who is she ? Name and age- appearance, dress, qualifications- What work does she do and when ? - what does she do in free time ? - about her relations / dealings with others - why do you like her ?

(c) A Journey by Bus: (Title)

Outlines: What is a journey ? - What was the occasion ? - How did your journey start ? - What was the scene inside ? - What are your experiences on the way ?
